CRITICAL HABITATS

Lands adjacent to this trail are critical deer and elk winter ranges and movement corridors. These same habitats are important for many other wildlife species. Soil conditions in this area are also quite fragile and can be damaged if used when wet and muddy. Users are asked to refrain from using this trail and adjacent lands during the winter months from Dec. 15 to April 15.

Trail users should consider the wildlife values and soil conditions before using these lands. Wise use will ensure quality recreational experiences without negative impacts to natural resources. Irresponsible use of the lands could cause harmful impacts resulting in the closure of this trail and adjacent lands.
